THE LEADERSHIP PERSPECTIVE

Start with the better question.

A leadership story can begin with an achievement. Its value grows when it explores the thinking that made the achievement possible. What did the leader notice? Which assumptions were challenged? What changed?

The most useful profiles make room for these questions. They invite readers to consider the decisions behind the result, and to find a perspective of their own.

THE STRATEGIC LENS

A considered decision.

A decision is a meeting point between ambition, evidence and judgement. The editorial task is to make those connections clear.
